With the implementation of SNA2008 at the European level (European System of Accounts ESA 2010) Member States have implemented methodological changes that have affected measures of national accounts indicators. Comparing the reference year 2010 between the two systems of methodologies (ESA 1995 and ESA 2010) the supply, use and input-output tables show differences in every part of the tables and influence analyses.

The paper examine firstly the changes for a selected number of countries underlying the impact of the changes in analysis the SUIO tables and the magnitude from one country to another. Secondly a systematic comparison scheme is developed. The analysis will be extended to the consolidated European tables in summer 2015 and be disseminated along national data analysis.
